We had a great first week of school! Over the first few days we have watched students learn and actively participate in our daily routines.

We read the book Chu's First Day of School and discussed our feelings during our first few days of school, as well as some of our special skills and interests!

Students are slowly being introduced to our learning centers. This week in the Art Center, students learned how to use glue, (just a dot, not a lot) while creating free art with collage materials including paper scraps, cotton balls and foam pieces.

As a whole group we brainstormed ideas for classroom rules that will help keep us safe at school! We discussed being kind, helping and sharing, listening to friends and teachers, and keeping our bodies calm inside the classroom. We wrote a list and all agreed to practice the rules so we can have a fun and successful year in Pre-K!

Next week we will continue to learn our daily routines. We will also be practicing making choices on where to play using our Center Choice Chart.
