

Pre-K Newsletter

Week of April 25th – 29th

Special Announcements:

On Tuesday, May 24th, we will be hosting a Pre-K Gala community event. Your child can enjoy fun activities, including painting their own flower pot, planting their own flower and having a delicious snack with their Pre-K teachers! More information will be shared soon!

Reminders:

- Please ensure your child's sweaters and jackets are labeled with their name.
- Spare clothes will be coming home to exchange for warm weather clothes.
- Please note gym is on Tuesdays – your child should be wearing sneakers.

This week we read An Orange in January by Dianna Hutts Aston. We discussed the journey of an orange from farm to home. The children were then invited to try drawing and writing about the journey of other fruits and vegetables either to their home or school.

In the Art Center we looked at the paintings of famous artists, including Claude Monet's Sunflowers and Georgia O'Keefe's Poppy and then enjoyed recreating our own versions.

This week we continued to plant more seeds and recorded observations in our science journals.

In the Math Center we used unifix cubes to measure how tall our class plants had grown, and also used the balance scale to compare which seeds were heavy or light.

Next week we will be discussing why plants are important to us.
